- I don't think it's necessary. I would have preferred preservation. There will probably be very few times houses are torn down in this neighborhood. I like diversity in all things, including architecture
- Can't commit to an answer with a review

- Our family specifically moved to Highland Park from a newer subdivision in Lafayette due to the neighborhood's historic character. The architecture, charm, and historical significance of the neighborhood are all worth protecting so that families and neighbors can enjoy Highland Park for decades to come.
- We are "alumni members" of the HPNA who have moved north of Kossuth. I'd love to see this succeed in HP and possibly adopted by the 9th Street Hill neighborhood.
